ILUKA AWARDED SOUTH AUSTRALIAN PREMIER'S AWARD FOR ENVIRONMENTAL EXCELLENCE

Iluka Resources' Jacinth-Ambrosia operation was this week awarded the South Australian Premier's Award for Environmental Excellence.

Iluka received the award for its environmental management and rehabilitation programs, including research partnerships to promote industry best practice, at its Jacinth-Ambrosia mineral sands operation located approximately 270 kilometres from Ceduna.

The award recognises Iluka's commitment to gaining a broader understanding of revegetation in saline and arid environments. As part of this process, Iluka has partnered with leading educational institutions, including the University of Adelaide and the Adelaide Botanic Gardens, to encourage external contributions to its environmental management and rehabilitation programs. Further, this approach allows the distribution of information beyond the mining and exploration industry to other arid environments requiring restoration.

Iluka has a demonstrated commitment to environmental standards that go beyond compliance. The Pro-activity – Beyond Compliance initiative sets the minimum standard for all Iluka operational sites and personnel, focusing on environmental, health, safety and social considerations. To win the award and receive the recognition of the South Australian Premier, Government and industry peers is testament to the commitment of all who have been involved at Jacinth-Ambrosia, and across Iluka's wider activities in the Eucla Basin.

Dan McGrath, Iluka's Manager Eastern Operations said: "Receiving this award is worthy acknowledgement for the many Iluka staff who have contributed to the Jacinth Ambrosia operation from its early exploration stage through to its current operations. It is pleasing that the drive for sustainable development within Iluka can be recognised within the wider industry community. This builds upon on our already strong reputation."

Receipt of the Excellence in Environment award also continues Iluka's recent success in the South Australian Premiers Awards, having received the Excellence in Social Inclusion Award in 2013.
